Wafting Away

>  I see myself
 My character
> My soul
 Wafting away like the incense of a candle

The candle's dripping wax, dragging it down
> Weighing me down
 Unable to fly guiltless forever

My self, instead of wafting up
> To the heavens in the pale blue sky
 Instead wafts down,
> Down to the devil and his eternal hell and damnation
 Staying there forever.

I see him, the foul bitch
> Smiling with glee, shouting with joy
 Holding my evil foul sins

> Up in his hideous hands
 Leering, smiling, beckoning
> I look away, but mine ears can still hear his laughter.
 Ringing through it all.

I see it, flickering, dancing
> As if happy to see me die
 My purity has long since gone
> Lost forever in the deep dark sea
 Holding as many secrets as the devil himself.

It must be a strange sight
> But how true, how true!
 Perhaps I am too far gone
> To compare myself
 To a flickering candle.
